

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electrical connector including a center conductor assembly having an inner conductor, an insulator and a center contact for electrically coupling with a mating connector. The center contact includes at least one spur which engages with the insulator to resist rotation of the center contact relative to the insulator. The insulator may include an anti-rotational feature around the circumference thereof to resist rotational movement relative to a connector body.